About This Game

Episode 1 Story

The Kokurase gang, also known as Cupid's Helpers, is out to help freshman Sakura woo Yoshimitsu, a popular senior with every other girl in school vying for his heart. Switch between Genji the leader, the newest member of the crew, Riho, the mysterious Meg, and Kanta, the supernatural sleuth, to bring these two lovebirds together in an intertwining tale.

The game begins with Sakura pining for Yoshimitsu to notice her, which catches the ear of Riho and the gang, who quickly make contact and begin to draw up plans to bring the two together. Days of preparation pass culminating in a gambit to bring the freshman and junior together, requiring the player to execute a series of intricate tasks involving all characters.

Japanese high school dating meets Oceans Eleven style heist. The greatest heist of all is the heart, or something.

Play the game. It's real good.. Very Good Game.

Good Story. Great Art.

The tileset at some points didn't fit the game art style but other than that it was overall great experience!

Would recommend!. Let's take an incredibly shy and awkward highschooler and try to match her up with a senpai heartthrob who's kind of a

This game is pretty fun for a variety of reasons. For starters, it shows off a bunch of things that can be done in RPG Maker that has nothing to do with combat, RPGs, etc. Second, the members of Kokurase (a matchmakers club) are all interesting and quirky, which adds a lot of humor to the plot overall. Third, you get to jump around between the different members, learning the overall story from several angles.

I suppose the best part of this is it's free, but there is additional episodic content if you're willing to pay the admission fee. Honestly, I think I might.
